The Doorway

Before you is a doorway.
Behind you lies your past.
Bits of broken memories.
You thought would never last.

The doorway is an exit
And though you don't really want to leave
You can't stay here forever
For memories are but dreams.

The dreams are Pandora's folly;
Keep them but don't let them lead.
On the other side is your new life.
There at the turn of a key.

Your memories, they have substance.
When you go, bring them along.
And in times of great despair
Think of them- they'll make you strong.

Even with all I've told you
The choice is only yours
To pass on through to the next stage
Or stay in your fantasy world.

Yes! You've made the right choice.
Pass through to the other side.
But don't close the door behind you.
Keep your memories by your side.

SENI

Friends are so important senior year for love and support. Here, Andrea Abbott, Anne Higham, and Jennifer Spencer beam about their friendship.

As we turn
And look back
Upon all these years
We remember the good times.
The laughter, the tears.

But the best memories
That will never fade
Are the good times we've spent
With the friends we've made.
And if in the future
Your life's in despair
These are the people
Who will always be there.
So if you think
That parting is strange
It's not an end.
It's only a change.

And you may believe that the good times are done
But you'll soon find out they've only just begun.....

Keith Ciampa 1983

ORS

Intellectual and Talented

Carl Theobald is one of those people who is not only intelligent, but also quite talented. As a rather competitive person, Carl certainly works hard at studying. He manages to keep his head up under the burden of a level 5 homework load and a level 5 teacher demand.

Yet somehow Carl still has time for all his extracurricular activities, in particular, drama and music. He has performed in the past three musical comedies, three Tournaments of Plays, and various other productions. Perhaps most important, though, is Carl's interest in music; he devotes a lot of his time to the piano, the trombone, and the violin. He spends much of his time at piano lessons at the Boston Conservatory and at rehearsals for the Bedford Symphony Orchestra. Carl's participation in the marching band, wind ensemble, and jazz ensemble has been quite important to him as well. And because Carl is so wonderfully creative, he can whip up musical compositions with what seems to be great ease.

While we wish Carl luck for his future, we know that not luck, but intelligence and talent, will assure him of his success.

Carl rehearses on the violin because practice makes perfect.

Carl practices the piano for a performance with the BHS Orchestra.

Taking a break, Emily waits for more customers to buy tie-dyed shirts during Bedford Day.

Senior class officers are always dressed in style. Bob and Kathy show off their tuxedos from Prom 1987.

Hard Work Pays Off

Seniors are incredibly busy preparing for colleges along with their usual courseload. They look forward to the end of the year when their class comes together for some of the most important activities they will experience in high school, like Prom and Graduation. Although the activities take place at the end of the year, the Senior class officers are busy planning and coordinating every last detail many months before.

President Bob Sullivan, Vice-President T.J. McNeany, Secretary Jennifer Moreau, Treasurer Emily Carr and the Prom Co-Chairmen Mary Jean Papalia and Kathy McGovern are constantly working together to make each class activity fun for every Senior. The officers are committed to serving their class. Only when the activity comes together do we realize how much time the officers have put into it to make it fun. By their Senior year, the officers are much better able to handle their responsibilities on their own and much more is delegated to them. They serve as a model for the underclassmen class officers. That they are so committed to their class during their hardest and busiest year demonstrates their dedication. The class advisors, Mr. Huff and Miss Curran, have guided the officers through their successes. From measuring caps and gowns to serving at the Senior Citizen Christmas Luncheon, the senior class officers are always coordinating projects for their class. Good Luck to the senior officers of the class of 1989!

Exhaustion

You begin your freshman year knowing that you're going to have more work than you've ever had before. Extracurricular activities are waved in front of your eager face and the temptation is too much - you grab at them, snappig up far too many choices! But it's O.K. You're a freshman.

Perhaps by the end of freshman year, you realize that these activities are consuming more and more of your time. The dreaded "conflict" becomes a frequent nightmare. And the schoolwork is just as bad - if not worse - as you feared it would be.

Sophomore year begins, and it's just as bad. The activities steal all of your time and classes are just as hard. Perhaps by the time you've bombed your sophomore midyears you realize that something is definitely wrong. The rest of the year runs you into the ground.

Junior year, nothing's different. It's as though you're trapped! Even if you drop one activity, the gap is filled by something else. Perhaps, if you lift your head up from your math notebook at 3 a.m. on a Tuesday morning, you know that your junior year is death. Any free time that a junior has is devoted to praying that senior year will be better.

Saturday Frolics

"What are you doing this Saturday?"

"I'm taking the SAT's."

"Oh. Ugh!"

This is a common conversation to look forward to towards the end of junior year.

Taking the Scholastic Aptitude test is an experience dreaded by all. Whether the SAT tests your math and verbal ability or how well you can sit at a desk for three hours, is not clear. Certainly, however, after taking the SAT, every victim is an expert at pencilling in those little ovals.

After the usual four weeks of waiting, the test scores are delivered, and a new debate rages through the school. The debate does not concern Central America or abortion; rather a much more important issue is discussed: how much emphasis do colleges put on SAT scores? Those who have done well proudly proclaim that colleges throw out applications based solely on SAT scores. The unlucky ones, who have not done so well, will meekly challenge this claim. In fact, the trend has been that the SATs are gradually becoming less important.

The other controversy concerns special SAT preparatory classes which may be taken outside of school for about $500. Clearly, not everyone is able to pay this large sum. Those who do have a definite advantage, as is shown by the improvement in their scores.

All in all, the SAT should not be feared. Rather, a person should have the attitude that three hours of fun thinking lie ahead. It is important to remember that after the SATs there's a new treat in store - the Achievements.

Keying in to Spirit

What are the characteristics of the sophomore class? Its members are not freshmen who are trying to establish a place for themselves. They are not juniors who are busy with PSAT's and plans for the semi-formal and the junior prom. They are not seniors who, besides the semi-formal and prom, must worry about SAT's, achievement tests, and college applications. So, what is so special about being a sophomore?

First of all, this sophomore class is graduating in 1990. Who could ask for a better year? Secondly, this highly spirited sophomore class has excellent representation in all aspects of high school life, from plays and musicals to clubs and organizations, and, of course, athletics.

Members of this sophomore class will always have fond memories of their high school days. These memories will include the Ten Year Reunion hall, Bedford Beach Club, and Hard Rock Cafe, Bedford.

This class has accomplished a lot in two short years at Bedford High, and will accomplish much more before graduation day in June 1990. Much of the credit must go to the class officers and their advisor, Miss Hanley, but they could not have accomplished so much without strong support from their student body.

SOPHOMORE CLASS OFFICERS: Mary Kate Hanley-Activities, Pam Taylor-Activities, Miss Hanley-Advisor, Jill Oblas-Treasurer, Camarie Clark-Secretary, Lennox Chase-President, Michelle Barry-Vice President.

Ann Marie Depietro perfecting her skills at the keyboard.

In between classes, sophomores take a quick stop at lockers before trudging on.

That Long Long Sophomore Year

As the warning bell for homeroom rings, groups of students leisurely stroll towards their homerooms. Who are these people who don't jump at the first bell, but yet do not have the courage actually to be late for homeroom? Sophomores, of course.

Sophomore year is probably the worst year of high school, more feared even than freshman year. After all, freshmen know that they are going to be stuffed in lockers, ridiculed, and stared at. What do sophomores have to look forward to?

Actually, a great many things. We have the advantage of knowing what teachers to get and not to get and we also know how to get a library pass a minute before study hall. More importantly, friendships have already been established. Instead of spending all year getting to know their classmates in a new setting, sophomores can be relaxed with their friends.

Unfortunately, as sophomores, we also begin to take on more responsibilities. Suddenly, it seems as if all the teachers are in a competition to see who can assign the most homework. We have a better chance at participating in sports, instead of warming the bench. All in all, we are very busy.

The most important part of being a sophomore, however, is status. When asked what grade she is in, the sophomore does not have to mumble "freshman." The sophomore can also act in a completely ridiculous way without being labelled as an immature freshman; instead, she is the upper lower classman. Although high school may sometimes be rough, we sophomores are almost half way through.

"And how many hours a day did you do lessons?" said Alice, in a hurry to change the subject.

"Ten hours the first day," said the Mock Turtle: "nine the next, and so on."

"What a curious plan!" exclaimed Alice.

"That's the reason they're called lessons," the Gryphon remarked: "because they lessen from day to day."

Freshman Tips

The Freshman experience. The biggest fear of a new freshman is to be lost on the first day of school. No matter how many times you visit these hallowed halls, you'll never remember where freshman hall is. Your best bet is to call on a trusted sophomore and have him find your classes. This is also a good lesson in humility.

The cafeteria(s). The old cafe is the lunchroom for the underclassmen. It's not true that they check for ID at the new cafe doors, but don't call attention to yourself - the senior football players don't like to be disturbed during their feeding frenzies. One other piece of advice - don't eat the "meatloaf".

Your locker. Remember to lock your locker at all times. At least five people have their books stolen during the year, it's a senior tradition. When decorating your locker, to be in with the crowd, you must use the most obscure or least revealing pictures you can find. Friends are also a good topic for locker decoration. Family is not.

Short cuts. A good rule of thumb is to avoid "short cuts" (especially if pointed out by an upper classman!!), at least until you can find your way to the student office from any hall in the building.

The last but most important thing to remember is that in only three more years you'll be a senior too - keep things in perspective.

Practicing for an upcoming concert, sophomore Tracey Hale concentrates on her music.

Christine Hamel and Erin Fehlau get psyched for a JV Field Hockey game.

Angela Griffin and Miss Cote finish off English class giving tomorrow's assignment.

New Found Freedoms

Freshman year in the high school is the year that students remember all of their lives. Freshman year is feeling nervous and excited when entering the school; getting to know the new teachers, the new building, the new people, definitely an experience in survival. Freshman year is looking up to the seniors, knowing it will be a long three years before you yourself can hold that enviable status. All of a sudden, responsibilities are given which seem overwhelming and unconquerable. After a while, these responsibilities become routine and freshmen start to appreciate the new found freedoms of the high school. It's great to be able to go to your locker whenever you want to, to arrive at lunch later, to realize that taking the late bus isn't such a terrifying experience anymore. More clubs are available to join and more fun activities are going on like football games, dances, spirit week, and hall decorating. Soon freshman year is a little more bearable and it goes by before you know it.

New Kid On The Block

You may have seen a new face in the back of your classroom. This face belongs to Mr. Robert Hentz, the new Assistant to the Superintendent. Some of the students may remember him as the principal of Lane School, a position he held for ten years. It all began in 1957 when he was a student teacher in the high school. He then became a sixth grade teacher at Center School for six years only to become principal in 1964 for another ten years. After his position as the Lane School principal, Mr. Hentz became the Assistant to the Superintendent in the high school. "I'm back where I began," he said. "I've made a full circle." In total, Mr. Hentz has been in the Bedford school system for thirty years.

As Assistant to the Superintendent, Mr. Hentz is involved with curriculum committees. This is the reason why students may have seen him observing some of the classes. Mr. Hentz is also involved with the reorganization of schools because of the declining enrollment predictions and extra available space. When he first became a teacher, there was a growth of the school system so that the administration had to hire new teachers and worry about enough space. Now, because of declining enrollment there must be a reduction in the staff and a closing of schools.

Mr. Hentz enjoys his new job and the high school as well. He feels very welcome among the students and faculty and he finds the high school a wonderful environment in which to work.

NEW BUCCANEERS

Several new faculty members have joined the Bedford High School team this fall. Ms. Pat Cote is in the English Department, Ms. Jean Mehrle teaches French in the Foreign Language Department, and Ms. Diana Duffy is a Special Education tutor.

This is Ms. Cote's first teaching job, and she finds it her life's biggest challenge. She comments, "Sometimes I have a really good day teaching the kids, but other days I find it very hard." Ms. Cote feels very lucky to be working in Bedford and hopes to do the best possible job for her students.

Ms. Mehrle has jumped right into the swing of the Foreign Language Department and is the French Club's new advisor. She has many new plans for the club's future and hopes that the members will enjoy their experiences of new cultures. Her plans include an International Dinner at which students will feast on exotic dishes.

Ms. Duffy is new to the Boston area, having moved here to join former college friends. She says that it is "beautiful" around here, but admits to missing the Midwest. As a student at a small college in Ohio, Ms. Duffy taught at an inner city school, and she finds Bedford very different. She enjoys the one on one relationship with her special education students and finds every small accomplishment rewarding. She even finds time for one of her favorite hobbies - playing ultimate frisbee.

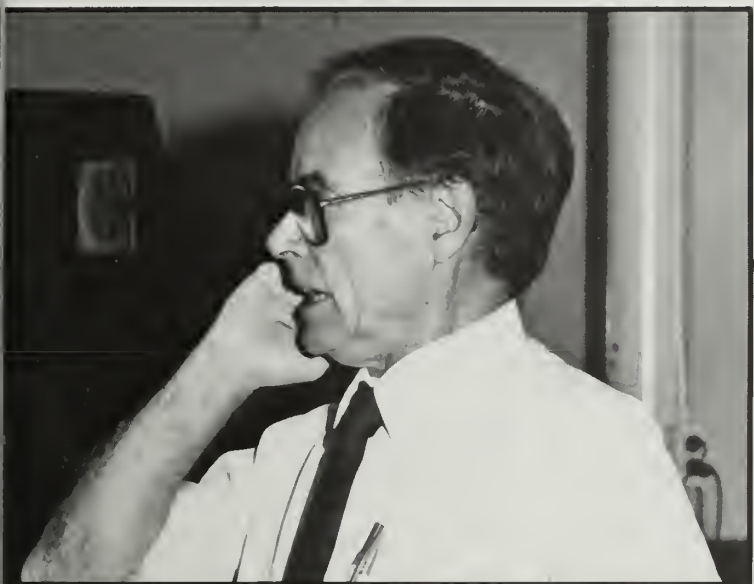

Ms. Duffy finds satisfaction helping students.

Ms. Mehrle settles in to her new job as French teacher.

VINTAGE BUCCANEER

An era will draw to a close at the end of this school year as Mr. Arthur McManus, Director of Physical Education, retires after thirty two years' service to the Beford Public Schools.

Asked about his own high school days, Mr. McManus replied that he was hardly involved at all. He dropped out of school and ran away to join the Navy, where he was involved in the rowing, swimming, and boxing teams. After a stint in the Navy, Mr. McManus decided to continue his education, and went on to Boston University, where he wrestled and swam.

Mr. McManus feels that sports give kids a chance to learn about life. Young people who have learned to follow the rules in sports and to work as part of a team will have a better chance of success in their careers and personal lives.

We wish Mr. McManus every success in his retirement.

Wow! A flash into the past of B.H.S! The basketball team of 1966 pauses with its coach, Mr. McManus.

ARCHITECTS OF TOMORROW

Select a house style and design a house from scratch. As well as designing a basic layout for the house, you will have to learn about construction, plumbing, electrical work, and insulation. This is the assignment for Mr. DiPietro's architectural drawing class.

After choosing the basic style, such as colonial, cape, or contemporary, the student acts as "general contractor" for the project. An accurate floor plan must be drawn, and logical decisions made, such as where to place a fireplace, how to lay out a kitchen, and how to place lighting for maximum safety.

After students complete their projects, they can go on to Mr. Baron's Art 4 class and construct a balsa model of their "dream houses."

Ryan Cardoos builds a model of his future home.

UNLOCKING THE MYSTERY OF MATH

If you want to sample a math class that is exciting and different, sign up to take a course with the new math program administrator, Richard Stephenson.

Students have glowing comments about Mr. Stephenson, "the coolest guy around," "makes math bearable," to quote admirer Erika McGilvray. One thing stands out about Mr. Stephenson - his true love of math. With his jokes, stories, and dramatic flair, Mr. Stephenson is determined to get students involved in his subject and to get them thinking.

A resident of Lexington, Mr. Stephenson lives with his wife, two sons, a dog, three cats and, of course, a computer terminal.

Mr. Stephenson has taught at Beaver Country Day School and for Digital and, most recently, was math department head at Whitman Hanson High School.

DRESSING FOR SUCCESS

As the day winds down, twelve girls meet for a clothing and crafts class. Supervised by Mrs. Drenas, this class gives them a chance to learn about clothing. One advantage to made-at-home clothes is cost. For example, a skirt that costs $30 in the store would cost about $15 to make! Plus, on top of the savings, the maker has the satisfaction of knowing that it is all her own work.

Another aspect of this class is that the students learn how to "dress for success." Each girl is shown how to make the most of her appearance by learning what style of clothing looks best on her. This talent will always be a treasure. Students should consider this practical course, which will bring them appreciation in the future; they will be able to make Halloween costumes for their children!

Yearbook

Co-Editor-In-Chief, Kathleen McGovern ,
on her way to the yearbook office.
Jessica Meyers diligently types up sports pages on the computer.

Many people associate the yearbook with the closing of a school year. For a few students, however, yearbook becomes a reality even before the school year begins. This year problems began in mid-summer when the yearbook staff was informed that their teacher advisor resigned, leaving the Bedford school system and the yearbook behind. Mrs. Byron came to the rescue, undertaking the project to the immense delight of the staff.

After the search for an advisor was over, the staff was ready to begin. Many members were anxious to use the year-old computer program. The 1986-87 yearbook staff was the first to put the new word processing program into use to create their book. The system proved to be an easier and quicker way of meeting deadlines without expensive mistakes. Returning members from last year's staff brought their computer experience with them making the use of the program much more profitable.

With the bright and intelligent new talents of dedicated members, the workload was made lighter and members could concentrate on more creative aspects of the book. With continued involvement from the student body, this yearbook, along with those to follow, will present the best years of Bedford High School the way they should be presented- with intelligence and spirit.

With continuing interest, both the Debate Team and Forum are alive and kicking this year. This year's Forum Staff has had to overcome serious problems just to get started. During the summer, the Bedford Minuteman announced the cancellation of the Forum section, and the staff had to look for a new way to print the paper, as well as finding the funds to do so. The dedicated staff, made up of editor David Clancy, with assistants Neera Tanden and Greg Melville, were forced to build the paper from ground zero. Forum has a larger staff of writers this year, so it promises to be more entertaining and informative than ever. With preliminary problems solved, Forum is off to a good start, and hopes to provide many thought-provoking articles.

The Bedford High School Debate Team has proved that it is one of the leading teams in the state. Although the debate team is only a few years old, it has successfully competed against many older and more experienced teams. The topic for debate this year is United States Policy in Latin America. The team started strongly, winning several awards at the first debate. The young team, led by Mr. Milliken, is just as enthusiastic as in previous years, and has a record number of participants.

Members of the team, now in its third year, are growing in experience, and hope that this year will bring even more recognition for their efforts.

AFS.

A senior with the eyes of a freshman: this describes me seeing the first weeks of my AFS year in Bedford. Wandering through the hallways of B.H.S., learning to open a locker, finding out what a spirit week is and helping for the first time at hall decorating; everything seemed so new to me, so different from my school in Italy!

Here I learned what it means to be shivering and freezing, but having fun at the same time, as I marched in my "cold" uniform at the band competitions and at the football games; here I learned what it means to be excited and a little afraid before performing in a concert; here I found out that school is not just study, it can also be a lot of fun.

Before I came here, I was told by several AFSers about the differences between Italian and American habits, ideas, and ways of living, but only now can I really understand what it means to cheer at a football game, to gulp down a quick lunch before a period of gym or choir, to sell POMS tickets to support a trip to Florida, and to prepare a musical with all my classmates in choir.

When I am back in Italy, this yearbook will probably be the most meaningful memory of my American year. Every time I open it (and I'm sure that will be very often), I'll remember all the wonderful people I found here in Bedford, my host family, my classmates, my teachers, my band-mates: MY FRIENDS!

Spanish-French

The Spanish Club celebrated its second birthday this year. The club started the year with a profitable fundraiser, selling "Hallowpops"--chocolate Halloween lollipops. New this year was a Halloween party with a live band that played popular Spanish tunes such as "La Bamba." Spanish Club members not only heard Spanish culture but tasted it as well during a Christmas luncheon at the Spanish restaurant, Cantares. With the spirit of the faculty advisor Mrs. Rull and Spanish students, the Spanish Club will prolong its existence for future years.

Started last year, the French Club has generated much interest among French students. This year close to ninety students joined the club. New members and a new faculty advisor Ms. Mehrle brought fresh enthusiasm. The French Club enjoys many holiday festivities such as the famous Halloween party and pleasurable Christmas caroling. Some other activities include fundraisers such as French Telegram sales and an international dinner cooked by students during International Week. The French Club hopes to continue its involvement in foreign activities for years to come.

Math-Science

A Math League enthusiast, Debra Dalrymple

Under the direction of Mrs. Krueger and Mr. Ullman, the Bedford High Science League started the year with a first place finish at the first meet. The team shows strength in the physics categories, combined with great potential in chemistry and biology. The science meets stress inventiveness and teamwork, and this year's team, Bedford's best ever, excels at both. In-school practice, by way of lab experiments and class discussions, are essential to the team. The meets necessitate experience and creativity in the laboratory as well as in textbook theories.

The math league, with advisors Mr. Stephenson and Mrs. Byron, competes six times each year in a league of forty schools. The competition is strenuous, with individual students striving to do their best. Not everyone can be a member of the Math League. Only students who excel in higher math and have the self-confidence to bring their knowledge to competition participate. Though not often in the limelight, the league has made many outstanding accomplishments this year. Knowing that their success is not always public knowledge, the members are satisfied to continue to challenge themselves for the sake of learning.

SADD

The Bedford High School chapter of Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) started in 1981, and this year there were more than fifty students involved in the program. The organization was started in 1979 by Robert Anastas, coach and health education specialist at Wayland High School, and now has chapters nationwide. The Bedford Chapter, headed by counselor Bernard Gollis, consists of three groups: a programming committee, a social committee, and an advertising committee. The fact that so many dedicated students are involved in SADD, shows that the students at Bedford High care about the program and what it stands for. The group sponsors meetings and assemblies throughout the school year, but puts the most effort into alcohol education around prom time, a time when students need to be particularly aware of the effect of alcohol on driving. SADD has been becoming more and more well-known and effective in this school as it has in others in the area. By putting up posters and distributing pins, they have made students aware of the program and its concerns. This general awareness is helpful in itself, since it may make students in Bedford think twice before mixing drinking and driving.

Committees

Suzy Shapiro and Christine Anderson in a pensive mood.

The Citizenship Committee is a group of students concerned with the world around BHS. The committee performs several functions during the year, including food drives around Thanksgiving and Christmas, the monthly election of a citizen of the month, and services at Town Meeting.

Acting as a liason between the Bedford School Committee and high school students, the five members of the Student Advisory Committee meet frequently with the School Committee to give students' views on high school issues. These students were elected at the beginning of the year to be representatives of the students of BHS. Some issues brought up and discussed by the Student Advisory Committee have been graduation requirements, locked bathrooms, and drug and alcohol problems.

Don't bother me while I'm studying, says Dave Clancy.

Drill Team

The Air Force Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps started the year with its first Drill Competition on December 12, at Newport, Rhode Island. The AFJ-ROTC is headed by Lt.-Col. Campbell and is assisted by CMSgt. Braga. Bedford MA-791 Squadron is made up of three parts: Team Drill Regulation, Male Drill, and Coed Drill.

The squadron is commanded by C/Capt. Adam Boyd, who is also the Drill Team Commander, and his deputy commander is C/2nd Lt. Matt Brown. The team also has C/TSgt. Gregory Evans commanding the Team Regulation Drill, with C/1st Lt. Israel Briggs at his side. Also, C/2nd Lt. Keith Cooney is commanding the coed team.

Especially because of the newly added help of SMSgt. Joe Slavens, who was a Drill Instructor at Lackland AFB, Texas, the team is expected to have certain success.

Girls'-Boys' State

Girls' State is an honor given to girls around the state to learn about our nation's government. All 250 girls were divided into ten cities and towns. While they attended seminars, workshops, and campaign meetings, they set up city, town, and state "mock governments." After electing and inaugurating the officials, they had achieved the main goal in the five-day experience: to learn about our governmental system by hands-on participation. Just as important were the close friends made in only several summer days. Girls' State was a great way to live independently on a college campus and to make new friends, who now mean so much.

At the sound of the words Boys' State, ideas might come to mind like entrapment, forced learning, or missing your summer vacation. But a look into this week of June at Bentley College reveals a much more interesting and educational event. There are 800 guys dressed in the same t-shirts exploring a large college campus. All students take one main seminar and one mini-course in various areas of government. The event is supervised mostly by former Boys' Staters. The older American Legionnaires, most of whom have fought for their country, take a certain pride in passing knowledge of their governmental system to the next generation.

National Honor Society

The Bedford chapter of the National Honor Society has always been a prestigious academic group. The students who are members must be nominated by their teachers for induction. Those selected show the outstanding qualities of character, leadership, scholarship, and service. Some of the honor society's activities during the year include: serving coffee for the Adult Education program, tutoring other students in the school, offering services to the elderly in the community, and participating in the National Heart Association's Phone-a-thon. The society also sponsors a dance in the spring; proceeds of which go to scholarships for worthy seniors. In addition, students consistently show their talents academically by taking challenging courses and performing remarkably well. As members, they must maintain superior marks for all four years at B.H.S. This group of students deserves much credit for being able to generously respond to the needs of the community and school, despite their busy schedules and heavy homework loads. The National Honor Society is respected across the country as a group of students who have high standards of excellence for their school, for their community, and for themselves.

Telemedia

"Good morning, BHS. This is your own morning news program bringing you all of Bedford High School's news live!" In most schools, a student would be bored listening to the morning announcements in homeroom. Not here, however! We are fortunate to have the exciting student organized and student produced television shows of Telemedia. The most popular show being "BHS Today" each morning which is broadcasted through the entire town. After much training and tedious practice for both talent and technical people, the student broadcasters become ready to do it live. Other members are responsible for doing pre-taped interviews to be aired on the morning show. Participants find it's one thing to keep the show from going completely haywire, but quite another to pull off a tight, respectable, semi-pro production.

The students in the Telemedia club are dedicated and hard working. Not only do some members come in early in the morning to set up for "BHS Today", others stay late in the afternoon to tape interviews or sporting events. Telemedia is more than meets the eye or what appears on the screen. So "for all of BHS's news, weather, and sports," tune into Telemedia.

Drama Club

The Best Newcomer, Brett Carey, practices his winning role.

If you've caked on a face-full of make-up, squeezed into an uncomfortable costume, and after a quick, nervous "Break a leg" from a friend, walked onto the stage with your heart flip-flopping into your mouth, then you know what it's like to be in the Drama Club. Actors, directors, and crews are kept busy all year round - starting in the fall with the competitive Tournament of Plays. This year the Freshman presented an ensemble piece, Two Small Fries to Go, where they portrayed teenagers describing their transitions into young adulthood. Two Bottles Of Relish, a suspense thriller, was performed by the sophomore cast whose member, Lilo Carr, received Best Supporting Actress. Brett Carey, member of the junior class play Nobody Sleeps, was awarded Best Newcomer. The Seniors gave an on-the-edge-of-your-seat production named The Patient where Carl Theobald, recipient of the Best Actor award, and Bob Sullivan, Best Supporting Actor, try to solve a murder mystery. One of the suspects, Julie Hunt, was awarded Best Actress. The primo award, however, is Best Play which was given (can you guess it?) to the Class of '88 for the third year in a row.

The Drama Club is also involved with the exhilarating Massachusetts State Tournament. The final fling is the spring production. Never static, always dynamic, are the actors, stage crew, and directors of the Drama Club

Singers

Ensembles is another one of many wonderful singing groups at the high school. Unlike the other groups, Ensembles has no required audition for members; it is a general level group open to all. The Ensembles perform with the choir at the Holiday Concert in December. They also perform at the annual Spring Concert. It's a great elective for those who love to sing but who hate to try out. This is an energetic and enthusiastic group that knows singing can be fun!

The Bedford High School Choir is the largest singing group in the school. An audition is required to be a member of the choir. The group consists of fifty nine male and female voices and it performs throughout the year. Besides their usual POMS, Holiday, and Spring Concerts, which are always spectacular, each of the choir members takes part in the annual Musical Comedy. This March, the choir and some Madrigal members put on the Broadway production My Fair Lady. As always, this B.H.S. musical comedy was an outstanding success.

In spring of 1987, the choir competed in the Montreal Music Festival. Because there were no competitions this year, much of the choir's focus was towards making My Fair Lady the best production ever to hit Bedford.

Kathy McGovern and Nicole Picard practice a Double Sextette piece together. Angela Gautier, Trebor Carey, and Rachel Pollock harmonize after school for Madrigal.

Singers

"Can't Help Singing!"- This is one of the songs performed by the Double Sextette. It was properly named so for the members of the Double Sextette just can't help singing; this select group of fifteen girls performs at several in-school concerts such as the Poms, Holiday, and Spring Concerts. Their commitment does not end here, however, for they also perform concerts in the community for some of Bedford's most prestigious clubs like the Rotary, Social, and Women's clubs. This year the Double Sextette had the added pleasure of traveling to Disney World, Florida, to perform such entertaining number as the hot arrangement of "In The Mood."

"Phinney's girls," as the group is commonly called, are directed by the multi-talented Diana Ricci and Jessica Meyers.

Madrigal is another select singing group, only it contains both males and females. It performs, however, a more difficult level of music that stuns and awes audiences. Like the Double Sextette, the Madrigal performs in in-school and community concerts. It, too, traveled to sunny Florida in February. The Madrigal with its concentrated talent, the highlight of many concerts.

Musicians

Concert Band is an elective that gives students a chance to learn and perform music at a general level. The band members, though it is not obligatory, may also be members of the Marching Band. However, each person must be a member of the Parade Band, which performs in local parades. This year, all effort was funneled towards the annual Quincy Holiday parade. At the same time, the Concert Band prepares for their portion of the Winter Band Concert and the Spring Concert.

The string instruments enter the scene through the Orchestra, which is directed by Mr. Richard Hagar. The orchestra displays its skill each year at the Holiday and Chamber Music concerts. The group consists of enthusiastic and talented violin, viola, cello, and bass players. For some of the more spectacular numbers, selected Wind Ensemble musicians join in to round out the orchestra's sound. The Orchestra is a valued part of the Music Department, that has the ability to make even the most difficult music look easy.

Musicians

Wind Ensemble is the only honors level music group at B.H.S. Members of the Wind Ensemble must audition for membership, which tends to be quite competitive. These talented musicians are characterized by their dedication to music and their serious attitudes. Although one of the requirements is to be in the Marching Band as well, most of the members are enthusiastic enough to view Marching Band not as an obligation but as a fun-filled activity. The Wind Ensemble also performs in both the winter and spring concerts, playing only the most challenging, yet enjoyable pieces.

The Jazz Ensemble is the smallest, select instrumental group in the music department. This group gives students a chance to play an entirely different style of music than those they are used to. Often, a member of the Jazz group has an opportunity to try a new instrument for the performances. Jazz Ensemble's debut performance is at the annual Winter Concert, at which they are often called upon for an encore. B.H.S. audiences always look forward to the jazz performances, since this group succeeds in playing a lively, unique style of music that appeals to students, faculty, and parents.

Marching Band

For the fourth consecutive year, the B.H.S. marching band practiced hard and performed hard under the direction of Paul K. Smith. Starting on the Tuesday before school, and every Friday through the fall, the entire band congregated on our new practice field. Listening to the monotonous tones of "Horns up", "Get the spacing right", and "What happened to the diagonals?" through Mr. Smith's megaphone, the band went through the field show consisting of "Mirada", "St. Thomas", "American in Paris", and "The Color Purple" until Mr. Smith pronounced himself satisfied with the performance.

The gruelling practices, which were well known around school, paid off when drum majors Nicole

Picard and Bob Sullivan led the band, flags, and majorettes onto the field in competition. At the MICA competition in Sullivan Stadium, the band placed second in Massachusetts in its division. Previously, the band had performed at the Billerica Band Competition and had been awarded first place in its division.

All of the band's practices were not purely for competition. Traditionally, the band has marched at all the Bedford High football games, and this year was no exception.

This year, the band took off to Disney World, where people who had never heard of Bedford learned that the Bedford High band was "Goose Bump Golden."

B and Front

The Flag Squad, Majorettes, and Marching Band strut their stuff.

The 1986-87 Color Guard ended their season with spectacular achievements. The guard was named best color guard in the Quincy Holiday Parade, and was awarded first place at an indoor guard competition at the Festival of Music in Montreal.

1987-88 began with the addition of four members to our squad, bringing it to a total of sixteen girls. The guard competed in the Billerica Invitational and received the award for best color guard, and participated with the band in the MICA competition at Sullivan Stadium, winning a silver medal.

The majorette squad started practicing in mid July for the fall parades, competitions, and half-time shows. New coach Judy Jones brought out many talents among the girls, giving them the ability to compete successfully as a unit.

Daily practices enhanced the squad's performance and helped them to win competitions as part of the band front. In the past two years, along with the band, the majorettes visited such places as Washington D.C. and Montreal, where they participated in a majorette competition as well as a parade.

This year, the band, color guard, and majorettes took off to Florida, where they marched down Disney World's Main Street, as well as performing at Epcot Center.

To be the best is a dream, a seemingly always unreachable fantasy that poor teams are in awe of and that great teams take as a challenge. This year the Varsity Football Team took that challenge.

Perhaps the win that the Bucs will remember the most, aside, of course, from the traditional Bedford-Concord Thanksgiving Game, is their win against Lincoln-Sudbury in which the team broke that town's twenty-seven game, three-year winning streak 7-0. As for the Thanksgiving Game, Bedford shut out Concord 35-17, defeating our rivals for the first time since 1978!

What made the team so incredible this year? A love for the game and a determination to achieve coupled with an amazing set of football players. The credit for the team's success can go not to the plays or the strategies but to the individual members of the team working together to create an unstoppable and infallible winning force.

BOYS' SOCCER

TWO POINTS AWAY

Before the '87 season began, the Boys' Varsity Soccer Team was considered the "dark horse" team in the D.C.L. The team had eight returning starters and some promising underclassmen. However, they faced a very strong league with teams like the everpresent powerhouses of Lincoln-Sudbury and Acton-Boxborough. Overall, it was a very strong season for the team. They outscored their opponents 37-17 and finished with a winning record of 8-6-4. Bedford had a strong defense as well, only once allowing more than two goals in one game.

Despite this inspiring playing, the season ended with a heartbreaking 2-1 loss to Wayland which kept the tournament two points out of reach. Their admirable effort throughout the season earned Bedford a great deal of respect within the league, upholding Bedford soccer's tradition of excellence. Remember--there's always next year.

GIRLS' SOCCER

SO CLOSE...

The Girls' Varsity Soccer Team had a terrific season. Despite early injuries to players, Bedford was extremely successful, bettering last year's performance with this year's 11-4-3 record. Due to Bedford's awesome defensive squad, all opponents were held to a mere 0.6 goal average per game, while the outstanding offensive unit scored an average of two goals per game.

The 1987 team was the first to advance to the quarter-finals in the State Tournament, an accomplishment that no recent Bedford girls' soccer team has been able to reach. In the play-off game against Pentucket, the girls held their ground well in a 0-0 tie for an exhausting seven overtimes, but Pentucket finally overcame BHS and won the game and the chance to compete in the semi-finals.

FIELD HOCKEY

LET'S GO LADIES!

The future looks bright for Bedford's Varsity Field Hockey Team. This year's team was one of the biggest ever, with upwards of 40 players (including J.V.). Since the team was young, this season can be looked at as a training session for an up-and-coming unbeatable squad.

A game that was filled both with joy and disappointment this year was the Bucs' game against Newton North. It was played exceptionally well, so the Bucs were thrilled when, in the last six minutes of the game, Michelle Marino scored. Bedford continued to play with determination, however, within three minutes Newton scored, bringing the final score to a one-one tie. This year's captains were half-back Jackie Weicker and links Sharon Wachsler and Laura Dmochowski. Making the Dual County League All-Star team were the three captains, goalie Leslie Fryer, and sweep Suzanne Wright.

It was another highly successful season for the Boys' Cross-Country Team in 1987. Coming into the season, they knew it would be a battle between Bedford and Weston for the league title, and, in the end, it was Bedford who went undefeated in dual meets to win the Dual County League crown.

Following its undefeated regular season, the team entered a wild post-season. In the DCL All-League Meet, through hail and snow, the varsity team placed second, missing first by the slightest of margins. Then it was on to the Division Four sectionals, where Bedford's third place finish qualified the team for the State Finals, which were held in sub-freezing temperatures. In this final meet, the Bucs placed twenty-fourth. The Bucs are looking forward to another successful season next year, although they will be losing seniors Dan Warmuth, Bob Hanley, and Captain Greg Melville.

X-COUNTRY

PRIDE IN STRIDE

This year's Girls' Cross-Country team had a season of regrowth. Lead by Coach Huff, the young team ran a long, hard season. Captain Tamar Kupiec, Christine Anderson, and Cheryl Koenig were the only returning members from last year. The team, consisting mainly of underclassmen, progressed greatly during the season and shows promise for next year.

Marianne Abbott, Kitty Rosewall, Georgia Stefanidakis, and Jennifer Dickinson were all newcomers who ran a number of strong races and improved continuously during the season. Karrie Armstrong, Michele Mason, and Julie Harley ran well in the season and also improved. Although the team's overall record was not an accurate reflection of the team effort, all members worked hard throughout the season.

Personal records were made and goals reached, but perhaps more important was the team spirit shown by psych bags and the friendship shared by all in the true Bucs spirit.

GOLF TEE-TIME

Traveling over the rolling green with a golf bag slung over his shoulder and a spring in his step is the future Arnold Palmer of this year's golf team. The optimism and the enthusiasm of the team members, not to mention the much appreciated support of Coach Reynolds, help the team to reach greater heights of achievement. The golf team was able to match the record of its prior season despite the loss of its top four players. Part of this was due to the late season action of senior Michael Handley and junior Luke McInnis. The no-nonsense, hard-hitting combination of Jayson Gilberti and Aaron Finkelstein had the highest number of strokes for Bedford. Rookies Scott Venuti and Kevin Duris were also a big asset. The golf team is expected to put more wins in the column next season. Overall, the young golf team showed substantial improvement this year.

RIFLE TEAM SHARP SHOOTERS

The rifle Team did very well this year, with several wins and a first place finish in the Mass. Junior Olympic Championships. The team was led by captain Scott Young, and coach Richard Dyer contributed his expertise for the second year. In addition, the new paint, ceiling tiles, and backstop turned the range into a high class facility. Most of the work on the range was done by the coach and members of the team.

The talent of the team was spread between seniors, juniors, sophomores, and freshmen. Seniors Chris Clemons and Scott Young were solid, consistent performers, while freshman John Goodpaster showed outstanding potential, and was team high scorer at the Mass. Junior Olympics. All in all, team spirit together with rigorous physical and mental training, was the rifle team's key to success.

The Boys' Swim Team started the season off slowly, but once they got started they swam along with the rest. In three big meets against Burlington, Boston Latin, and Leominster, Bedord was victorious every time.

The team was guided by Captains Brian Maczko, Todd Dworshak, and Shawn Reynolds. All showed promising swims; Maczko in diving and the 100 breast, Reynolds in the 50 freestyle, and Dworshak in the 100 breast. The three captains helped to push forward the underclassmen, with Ken Pederson in the 200 individual medley and Aaron Finklestein in the 100 butterfly. The team showed much improvement in the course of the season with improvement by each individual on the team.

The Girls' Swim Team consisted of only 17 girls, 9 of whom were new to the team. By the end of the season, the newcomers had improved so much that some of them earned varsity letters. The entire team pulled together for the end of the season with a 5-4-1 record, a sixth place finish in the sectional meet, and seventh place in States.

Senior Captains Rene Holtzman and Courtney Chubb were the two strongest swimmers for Bedford. Rene had a fourth in the 200 I.M. and seventh in backstroke for States, and Courtney placed first in 500 freestyle and third in 200 freestyle.

Even though the team did exceptionally well throughout the season, the scores and the record were not the only memorable accomplishments. Swimming may seem like an individual sport, but for Bedford, it's a team sport all the way. There is an incredible amount of team spirit displayed by team members: for example, cheering for Linda Zimmer during the last few legs of her 500 freestyle, animal farm noises to psyche up divers Laura Cook and Robin Bailey at Bostin Latin, and the team effort during the "Hokey-Pokey".

BOYS' BASKETBALL ALMOST

Despite a promising start for the Boys' Varsity Basketball Team, the season ended in yet another disappointment. Although Dan Callahan went down with a knee injury, the team was anchored by the staunch defense of Co-Captain Dave Concannon and the offensive efforts of Taavo Godtfredsen and Karl Farmer. The team proved to be a formidable opponent to every D.C.L. team. Dan Callahan did make a quick comeback from surgery and re-joined the team near the end of January, but the results did not change dramatically.

If one word could describe the Bucs' season this year, it would be "almost." Bedford almost beat this year's amazing Boston Latin team, but lost on a last second shot by their opponent. The boys almost beat Wayland, but lost in overtime. They almost defeated the state's best team, Lincoln-Sudbury, as the Bucs held the lead for most of the game, but Bedford finally lost by two points.

Whether they were feeling the thrill of victory or the agony of defeat, the Girls' Basketball Teams showed their Bedford determination and sportsmanship. With the return of many players plus the addition of valuable newcomers, the girls had strong teams.

This 87-88 season will be remembered by the girls as a hard one, with its ups and downs. High points included wins over Arlington Catholic, Weston, and Wayland, while disappointing near misses included a 56-57 loss against Acton, and a 40-41 score against Boston Latin.

All of Bedford's opponents knew that they would have a tough game against the height, speed, and control that characterized the Bedford girls. The team was determined to succeed and every individual worked hard. With six more games to go, the Bucs have a solidly winning record of 8-6-0.

ICE HOCKEY

SKATING ON THIN ICE

The Bucs icemen had a rough start in the Dual County League. Led by Co-captains Tom Porter and Ed Gardner, and coached by 1986 All-Star coach Mark Lane, the strong team came up against even stronger opposition, and stood fifth in the league with a 3-6-0 record after the first nine games.

The team had to commute between two home rinks, Hayden Rink in Lexington and Middlesex Rink in Concord (cold, cold, cold) as reconstruction of the Shawsheen Rink remained incomplete.

In spite of some disappointing early season losses, the Bucs maintained their momentum and showed improvement with each game. Goalie Anthony Alves stopped over 80% of the shots and his goals against record went down game by game. Porter was sidelined briefly by an injury, but had returned to form by the end of January, as the Bucs stood ready to improve their record.

SKI TEAM SWOOOSH!

Once again, the ski team had another profitable year with the addition of a new coach, Ed Machado. Ed helped prepare the cross country skiers for competition by having them train on roller blades in the library parking lot. Meanwhile, the downhillers were on the track, running gates. But lack of snow prevented any real ski practice until just before the first race, at Weston. Leading the way for Bedford's cross country team in that race was senior Matt Mazzotta, who took third in the boys' race, and Meredith Evans and Dana Larsen, who finished back-to-back in the top ten of the girls' race. A few days later, in the first downhill race at Nashoba Valley, Chris Hamby and Dana Larsen led the Bedford skiers in their respective races. The team could have performed better had there been more snow on the ground.

Many races have followed and, although conditions have been somewhat poor, the ski team has persevered to make it all very interesting.

Led by coach William Keup, the track team had a rough but improved season this year. They had many new young runners, but they still could not make up the depth needed to beat the bigger schools. There were bright points in the season, like captain Bob Hanley's time of 4:44 in the mile and Duran Bowers' time of 4.7 seconds in the 40 yard dash; both of these were league bests this season. Senior Donny Campbell also had two league bests, with a 6.1 second time in the 45 yard hurdles and a jump of 6 feet 2 inches in the high jump. Winning individual events this year were Dan Warmuth in the 600 yard dash, Pat Jarvis in the shot put, Simeon Griffin in the 300, Chris Blondin in the 1,000 yard dash, Mike Jarvis in the 45 yard, and Jamie Perry in the 2 mile. Although several of the best runners are due to graduate this spring, a lot of young talent will be returning, and the future looks hopeful.

CHEERLEADING CATCH THE WAVE

Cheerleading is a double season sport that requires as much or more commitment from its athletes as any major team sport. Cheerleaders must practice for eight months a year, July through February, and perform at all varsity football and basketball games. Their uniforms are designed for a breezy September day or a January heated gym, yet they also have to survive two hours on an icy November field.

As the cheerleaders stand on the sidelines, cheering, shouting, and jumping, their goal is to psyche up the crowds and the team. As they perform their old and favorite chants and bring variety by introducing new ones, the crowd becomes excited and involved in the game. This year, the cheerleaders used painted signs to spur on the players at home games. To give the players that extra bit of "sweet" energy, the cheerleaders also prepared pre-game "psyche bags", full of the players' favorite candy.

A girl who wants to be a cheerleader must be ready to attend practice almost every summer weekday and to sign up for cheerleading camp. The summer is spent going over old cheers and teaching them to new members of the team. Cheerleading is an enormous commitment, and it can be hard work. But, as any cheerleader will confirm, the team spirit and shared effort make it all worthwhile.

Student Trainers Ami, Liz, and Jodie learn through hands-on participation about athletic training.

TRAINERS BEHIND THE SCENES

A student athletic trainer is educated in five main categories: prevention, evaluation, treatment, rehabilitation, and medical record keeping.

Prevention, the trainers learned, means keeping to a healthy diet and remembering to stretch out before exercising. Evaluation includes finding the history of an injury, determining what the injury is, and deciding what should be done. Treatment consists of following up on the evaluation; rest, ice, compression, elevation, whirlpool, hydroculator, and protective wrappings are all useful treatments. Rehabilitation involves getting the injured part back to work. It might include weight training, bicycle riding, or the treadmill. Medical record keeping means keeping notes on who comes into the athletic training facility and the treatment each person receives.

A student athletic trainer must also learn about bones, muscles, names of injuries, and the process of evaluation. To receive a varsity letter, an athletic trainer must pass several quizzes and a final exam and must work for a total of eighty hours in the athletic training room or at games.

The training program at Bedford High School is headed by Peter Cacciola. He runs the training room in an extremely professional and organized manner, and he inspires enthusiasm and dedication in the student trainers.

STUDENT LIFE

Happy Birthday, Bedford!

"By the rude bridge that arched the flood, Their flag to April's breeze unfurled."

Ralph Waldo Emerson

These words immortalized the Bedford Flag, taken into the Battle of Concord in 1775. Today it is the town's most prized historical possession. However, Bedford has much more to celebrate, and it does so on Bedford Day.

Each year on the Saturday closest to September 23, Bedford celebrates its original incorporation. The annual festive, town-wide event includes a parade and an outdoor fair. This year, the 258th anniversary, was celebrated despite an overcast day. Proud celebrants who marched in the parade were soccer players, camp fire and girl scouts, R.O.T.C. Airmen and others who were challenged by the rain.

Many town organizations were represented at the fair, and an opportunity was provided for fund raising and community public relations.

The Public Ceremonies Committee announced its citizen of the Year, Lawrence W. Kimball, for his enduring dedication and length of volunteer service.

The Senior Class appeared to have one of the most successful booths, topping off at approximately four hundred dollars. The sale of tie-die T-shirts, recently back in style, was the "cause celebre."

The Bedford Flag celebrated 258 years later.

PROM '87

"What?? The pink background mural didn't come in? How are we going to cover the back wall? Oh no, we don't have a D.J.? You've got to be kidding?"

"No, we're not kidding!" our prom co-chairpeople Kathy McGovern and Janet Carroll would frantically reply. But, regardless of these problems, The Class of 1988 was successful in transforming the gym into a heavenly paradise for their prom. The walls were covered with pastel purple murals that suited the theme, "Almost Paradise." On the Friday before the prom, juniors were excused from class to drape elegant streamers that masked the gym ceiling. Members of the class also completed a delicate white gazebo. With the special additions of wicker furniture and charming blooming plants, the gym was no longer a gym but a paradise. Prom decorating was not only a major accomplishment it also created a new bond between those who participated.

All the anxiety over preparations paid off in the form of an elegant prom night. Couples who journeyed through the gym doors on that memorable May night could hardly believe the spectacular ballroom they had created. The hours spent planning the evening, choosing an outfit, and stapling streamers were made worthwhile.

All too soon the Prom King and Queen, Matt Mazzotta and Emily Carr, had been chosen and the court had been named. The last dance came much too quickly and then our Junior Prom was over. Since nobody wanted the magic to end, friends regathered at parties to stretch out the fun. Through creativity, cooperation, and hard work, the juniors had created an evening they would never forget.

Deck the Halls

A spirited Spirit Week culminated at the end of the week with hall decorating. Each of the classes decided on an original theme and began pooling together props and artwork to fill its hall. On Thursday afternoon students revealed the artwork they had prepared and began to put new facades on the halls of the school. The freshmen decorated upper A wing to the theme of "Under Water," the sophomores decked out lower C wing to look like a "Hard Rock Cafe," complete with vintage music memorabilia. The "Junior Jungle" was a spirited contribution with monkeys swinging from trees and the remnants of ill fated safaris. The senior class with its "good" intentions, transformed upper C wing into a heavenly jungle complete with singing angels.

The students waited in anticipation until the G period pep rally. A roar exploded from the bleachers as M.C. Mr. Gary Hunt announced the Junior Jungle as the winning hall.

Go Bucs Go!

Erika Robinson shows her true spirit with a home-made paper mache Buccaneer head.

Amazed that they were chosen, the five finalists congratulate each other.

As each class pounded the risers and screamed out its spirit, the band blasted songs that aroused pride in our school. Next the teams ran out into the middle of the gym and "got psyched." After all the athletes had sat down on the gym floor, the five finalists for both Homecoming Queen and Homecoming King were announced to the cheers of the students. To begin the rally, the flag squad and the majorettes performed their traditional routines to the music of the band. The flag squad moved with a resolute attack that created an almost perfect synchronicity. The majorettes came out and did their most lively routine, and were followed by the cheerleaders.

The rally closed with a "spirit contest of the classes" and noise that almost took the roof off the gym.

Julie Hunt and Bridget Linehan, faces painted in our school colors, enthusiastically cheer at the rally.

Catch the Spirit

Spirit Week began enthusiastically with Sixties Day. Student attire ranged from rebellious hippy outfits to the fashionable minis of the end of the decade. Tuesday was the traditional Costume Day. In the halls one could see a variety of characters including flappers, clowns, girls dressed like men, and even an executioner. Mr. Huff posted his list of items for the scavenger Hunt and the competition between the classes was underway. What was the name of the genius who earned a 100 on one of Mr. Sabourin's tests? Which teacher was born on February 13th? On Wednesday, guys and girls dressed to the hilt in suits, tuxes, and fancy dresses for Look Your Best Day. Students dressed appropriately on Thursday for Inside Out and Backwards Day, and learned that the senior class was the winner of the scavenger hunt. Blue and White Day was a climactic finale to Spirit Week as students adorned themselves in our school colors and painted their faces with that Buccaneer pride.

Homecoming

Despite sprinklings of rain, the turnout at the Homecoming Game was huge, partly due to Bedford's winning streak. The football team justified our confidence by beating Newton South 29-0. It was great to finally win our Homecoming Game.

Amidst much excitement, the five finalists for Homecoming Queen were escorted out on the field during halftime by their fathers. Erika McGilvray Meredith Evans, Emily Carr, and Gwen Moll each received a kiss and a flower from Mr. Duggan. Then Kathy Doughty was crowned our Homecoming Queen and shown off to the cheering crowd in Pete Cacciola's go-cart.

Powder Puff

Each year, for a group of spirited (and sometimes bloodthirsty) girls, the Thanksgiving break means Powder Puff Football. Senior and junior girls start practicing a few days a week at the beginning of November, with much good-natured coaching and teasing by volunteering football players.

Powder Puff often proves to female athletes that football requires a lot more thinking than it might appear. Still, many girls join for the pleasure of slamming into one another and calling it a sport!

It seemed that the juniors were more psyched up for the match on November 27, while the laid-back and experienced seniors appeared confident in their ability to conquer. This they did indeed. The seniors moved ahead in the first quarter after a touchdown by Heather Bensley with a snap and pass by Caroline Ennis and Jen Moreau, all engineered by head coach Mike Shamon. The rest of the game continued in a stalemate, with the final score remaining at 7-0.

Bonfire

For the first time in years, Bedfordites were able to experience the thrill of the often rained-out bonfire. The traditional pep rally took place on the field across from the library before the spectacular bonfire was ignited the night before the Thanksgiving Game that the Buccaneers play against our old rival, Concord-Carlisle High School. This year was different from past years because the crowd and team had more reason than ever to hope for the win that would break our decade-long losing streak with Concord. The Bucs had an excellent season, making us all aspire to a possible Thanksgiving victory.

The marching band, majorette squad, flag squad, and cheerleaders all performed to the delight of excited students and reuniting "supergrads." A highlight of the evening was the "Buccaneer Rap," performed by Jim Colliton and Peter Dion. And then a long-standing tradition was upheld as the senior team members were called up to give flowers to their mothers.

Soon it was time to ignite the huge pile of wood. The football team gathered round to add gasoline to the pile, after which the base was ignited. The crowd, band, squads, and teams looked on in amazement as the flame climbed up to the top, eventually destroying the stuffed Concord player, melting him until only his helmet remained. The heat was so great that the crowd backed away. Soon the air was filled with swirls of sparks and waves of heat from the fire. When the crowd finally left, all that remained were the ashes of the memorable pep rally and Bonfire of 1987.

Semi-Formal

What happened on the night of January 9th? Anyone? Anyone? That's right- it was the night of the Junior-Senior Semi-formal. And who was our disc jockey? Anyone? Anyone? That's right- it was "The Party Machine." And where was it held? Anyone? Anyone? That's right- it was held at the Hanscom Air Force Base Rec. Center.

If you could answer these questions correctly, you had a memorable time at the semi-formal. It was a night that one could hardly forget. Most couples, dressed in the latest fashions, started out the night by going to dinner at local hot spots before arriving at the dance. Once at the rec. center, students hit the dance floor to dance the night away to the tunes of the most popular dance mixes. If the dancing became a little too heated, couples could rest in the lounge area or go to the soda bar for a sip to drink.

At the close of the dance, couples sauntered into the night attending parties or small get-togethers. But one thing is for sure - a good time was had by all.

STRESS

Ever feel like you have a heavy weight precariously hanging over your head? Like you're always running around? Like you never get any sleep? Like you don't feel like doing anything anymore? The diagnosis may be STRESS.

The definition of stress in a general sense, according to David Elkind, Ph.D., is "any demand for adaptation," which means essentially that we are all always under stress! But in a more narrow sense of the word, stress occurs when the demands on a person are extraordinarily high. Of course, you could have the same amount of demands on you as your friend, but you may experience more stress simply because of your personality. "The degree to which we are stressed by any demand depends partly on the demand and partly on us."

As for teenagers and stress, experts say that today's adolescents are under much more stress than those of the forties and fifties, for example, our parents and teachers! Although we may have more freedom to do what we please, we have more losses due to the much higher divorce rate (40% of young people will have experienced parental divorce by age 18) and tremendous academic pressure.

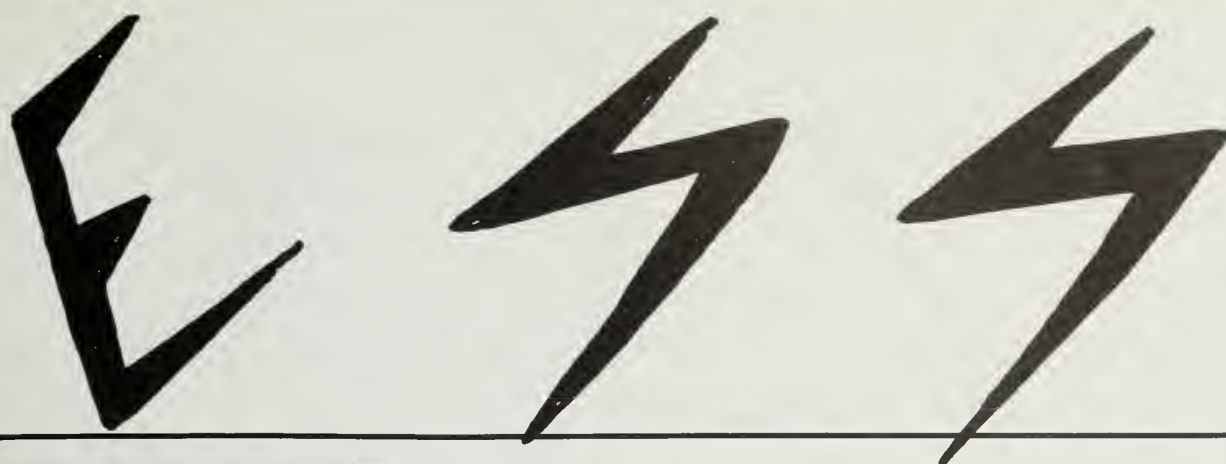

The reason stress takes such a toll on so many people is because of the huge amount of energy that it consumes. Not enough of this energy is replenished with food and rest, causing headaches, stomachaches, and utter exhaustion. And since health affects performance, teens who are "stressed out" begin to do poorly at their studies and start to lose interest in extracurricular activities.

The only "pain killer" for stress is talking. Talking to someone opens up alternatives and helps in dealing with failure. So if you have a friend who seems either depressed or going insane, open your mouth and open your heart.

DEPRESSION

Depression. It's an unpleasant word that's on the minds of lots of people; we hear songs on the radio about "the blues" and some of us have taken courses that discuss depression. For instance, the Health I classes do a unit on depression and ways to deal with it. In it Miss Hanley teaches that in order to cope with your depression you must first find out what is causing the stress. Then you must talk about it to someone who can put things in perspective. Family problems is at the heart of some depression, like not living up to parents' expectations. Miss Hanley suggests discussing this with parents by saying calmly and reasonably, "This is why I am doing this..." but not arguing.

Many students are concerned, not about themselves, but about a depressed friend. To help a depressed friend, find out the cause(s) of his unhappiness, and listen when he talks. Let the person know you CAN be trusted, and support him. Finally, encourage the depressed individual to get more help, if he needs it, from a support group or trusted adult.

HOMEWORK BLUES

Sitting in front of a blank page, re-reading a sentence a hundred times over, day-dreaming with heavy eyes. These are all signs of the "homework blues." And this can contribute to stress.

A lot of people spend hours getting nothing done. They sit down with their books, begin, get up to get some Oreos, go back, get up for some Coke to wash the Oreos down, start really studying, end up on the phone, etc., etc. And in a few days, it all starts snowballing into a mass of homework that threatens the next four weekends out!

But many people just get out of the house between dinner and bedtime sometimes five nights a week. Part of the reason for that is too much stress at home. Many teenagers would much rather be with their friends and boy/girlfriends than sitting at home with a nagging parent, wasting time on something they don't enjoy doing.

"Homework is often talked about as if it helps young people acquire a set of work habits and discipline..." says David Elkind, Ph.D. He also says "There is absolutely no evidence, however, that homework has any subordinate educational benefits." Maybe someday we'll be able to convince our teachers of that!

PARENTS

Parents - Those omnipotent creatures who loom over us with rules and regulations in hopes of paving the path of our lives. In the process, they become the opposing figures instead of the supporting figures. Of course parents do all their ranting and raving for the good of their children. No matter what their intentions, however, parents may be the cause of a certain amount of stress.

One of the problems with parent/kid relationships is high expectations. Since the parents want their children to be successful, they push them to excel. Failure to live up to these expectations causes disappointment in the child and in the parents. But high expectations also cause another thing - nagging. When parents nag their children to do something, the kids tend to rebel and not do it, causing tension within the household.

The answer seems to be simple: find a bridge to cross the generation gap. This, however, is easier said than done!

PEERS

Peer pressure. We have all heard of it and we have all experienced it. It is just another thing added to the list of many high school things to deal with. Unlike what some adults may think, most students think peer pressure is not someone shoving a cigarette down your throat or forcing you to drink alcohol. It deals more with who you are and who people think you are.

Many students find themselves worrying about what other kids will think of them. They dress a certain way and they act a certain way to feel accepted. It is hard for students to be comfortable with themselves especially when peer pressure plays a major role in their lives.

Peer pressure has always had bad connotations attached to it, but good things sometimes can come out of it. For instance, if a student is the only one in the class who is failing, the better grades of his/her peers may cause the student to work harder and do better.

Put simply, peer pressure is the push students get from other students that direct them a certain way. It is the individual student, however, who really decides how the pressure from peers will affect him or her.

What drives you crazy?

KIDS TALK ABOUT STRESS

"Studying for everything all at once- that really stresses me out. I don't like cramming for two or three tests all in one night."

-Jean Venuti

"What really stresses me out is when I have to do a huge paper or report in one night, when I have to spend my entire weekend going to band activities I've been made to think are important, and the most stressful experience is the feeling I have just before running in a cross-country race, especially at Franklin Park."

-Christine Anderson

"Janitorial duties at Deborah Ann's Bakery made me stressful."

-Daryle Grof

"Math tests, heavy metal, Greg Melville's roller derby announcements on Telemedia, and Dave Rhodes' ketchup sculptures at lunch drive me crazy."

-Bob Hanley

"Senior year brought the added responsibility of college applications, transcript forms, financial aid forms, ect. It was all fun, fun, fun!"

-Dave Fox

"Too much to do and too little time to do it."

-Suzanne Spencer

Pet Peeves

Don't you just hate it when the girl three rows back snaps her gum during study hall? Or when your best friend talks at lunch with food spewing out of the mouth? Or when your teacher has yellow chalk all over his face? How about a certain word expression a person repeats constantly? These are things that seem to touch a tender spot of our personality. They rub us the wrong way and we seem to get ticked off easily by them. They are called pet peeves- little idiosyncrasies that drive us crazy and mount to the stress that we already are experiencing. Here is a list of pet peeves for you. Which ones can you relate to?

- * Pencils without erasers
 - * People who stand too close to you while talking to you
 - * Pens that run out of ink during an essay test
 - * A mosquito buzzing around you in the middle of the night
 - * An empty ice-cube tray in the freezer
 - * Finding dried egg on a fork in a restaurant
 - * Stepping in gum
 - * People asking you how much you weigh
 - * Being stuck in class without a tissue when you have to blow your nose
 - * People who eat while talking on the phone
 - * Cold sheets
 - * The sound of pens scratching furiously while you're stuck on the first question
 - * People who think they know everything
 - * No towels in the bathroom
 - * Someone asking how you did on a test when you both know he/she did better
 - * People who are too bright, too cheery and too talkative in the morning
- (Pet peeves from Seventeen, March 1985)

Teachers... making the grade

If you ever felt like grading your teachers the way they grade you, here is your chance. This test does not require any studying on your part; it just needs a little observation of how you view your teachers. Take the test yourself and compare it with others to see how the teachers score in our school.

1. In general, do like your teachers?
 - a. I like most of them.
 - b. I like some of them.
 - c. I like a few of them.
 - d. I don't like any of them.
 2. Do you feel you get enough individual attention from most of your teachers?
 - a. Yes.
 - b. No.
 3. Are most of your teachers well-prepared for class?
 - a. Yes.
 - b. No.
 4. Which class would you rather take?
 - a. One with a boring subject but a good teacher.
 - b. One with an interesting subject but a boring teacher.
 5. Which type of teacher do you prefer?
 - a. One who's easy but dull.
 - b. One who's challenging but interesting.
 6. Do you think good teachers deserve higher salaries than bad teachers?
 - a. Yes.
 - b. No.
 7. Have you ever become friends with one of your teachers?
 - a. Yes.
 - b. No.
 8. Would you ever want to be a teacher?
 - a. Yes.
 - b. No.
- How did your teachers fare?

Mr. Sullivan with some of his favorite students- Tami Beecy, Kristin Godart, Megan Lacovara, Janet Carroll, and Pam Ricker.

A Year In Review

Fads and fashions change every year. Remember way back when when friendship pins were the "in" thing? Or when the members of the rock group, Duran Duran, were the hearthrobs of every teenage girl? Once again, however, the tastes of students have changed. The yearbook staff went out and surveyed the school to see what the students of 1988 thought was "in" and what was "out." Here are our results; see if you agree.

MOONLIGHTING

Glimpses of '88

Predictions: Are They Correct?

*Over 25 years ago a popular magazine at the time, Look, published predictions that they, along with many experts believed would have happened by the late 1980's. The Signum staff thought some of the predictions were comical and unbelievable and wished to pass them on to you.

*Every newborn baby may start out in life with his/her own phone number. Phones will stay with the individual, and he/she will be able to reach anyone in the world and even people in space.

*The phone will be the master control which will answer the front door and even turn on and off many appliances.

*Within 25 years, a spaceship twice the weight of a jet liner will carry 3 or 4 men along with food and oxygen for several months and fuel to get home.

*A family jet-powered sedan for five passengers is capable of flying a foot above the ground on a bubble of compressed air and up to 500 mph. It will also be able to go up or down vertically.

*There would be circular interchangeable kitchen units attached to the house. There will be an ultrasonic dishwasher that cleans dishes within seconds.

*The addition of negative ions in the air to make us learn faster and feel better perhaps also to speed healing after surgery. There also might be a system where one would simply turn a dial to invigorating mountain air or a balmy seashore atmosphere.

*A pocket-sized, battery-operated color-television receiver combined with a stereo radio set will fit in a case only slightly larger than the shirt-pocket.

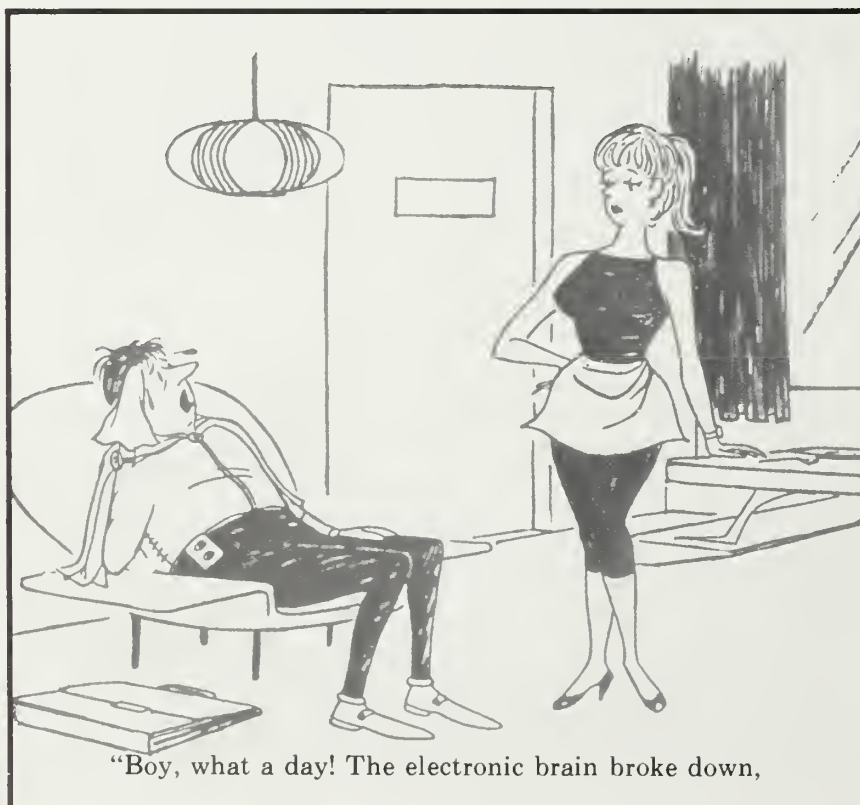

*A lawn mower would be completely automatic and would start itself when grass reaches cutting height, store its own solar energy for power, follow a precise cutting pattern, all according to a taped program.

*For education: From central hometown libraries, families will select pretaped lesson, which will be transmitted by telephone to closed-circuit radio and television. Also individuals will need to know the languages, history, and philosophy of other countries to get ahead in the business world.

*The modern appliances will be able to fold up and be carried off to any place a person wishes to take it. One such appliance is the refrigerator. It is collapsable, thermoelectric, and even battery-operated. A portable stove will also be thermoelectric and be able to fold into an oven. A house will also be able to fold up, and a family will be able to take it on their camping trips. It will fit in a suitcase and aluminum pipes will hold it up.

*Billy Graham predicted, "We will witness in the next 25 years the growing power of evil...and startling indications of the growing power of good..."

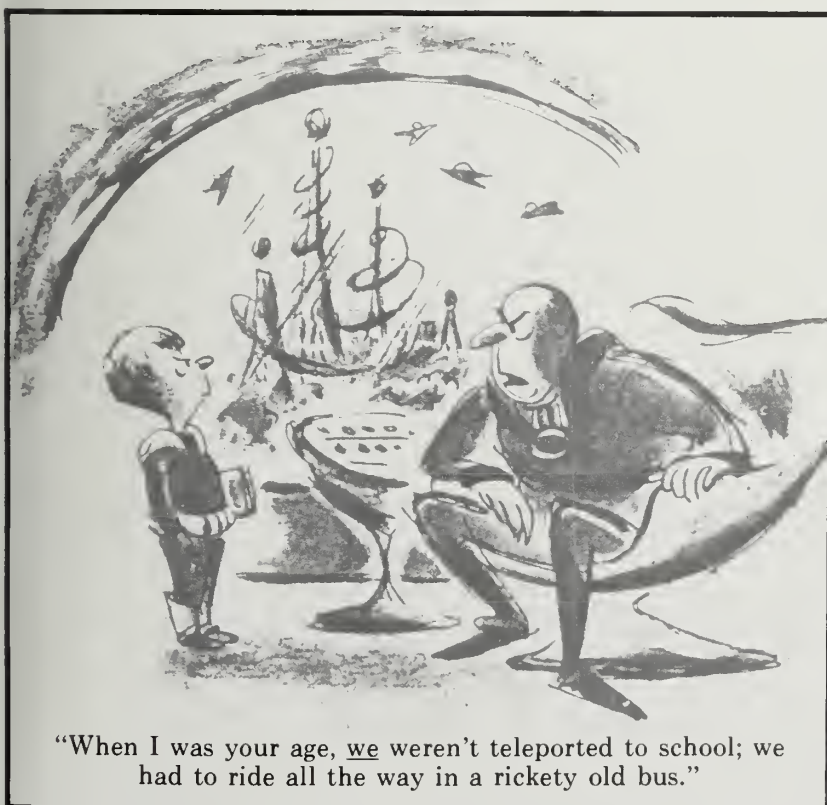

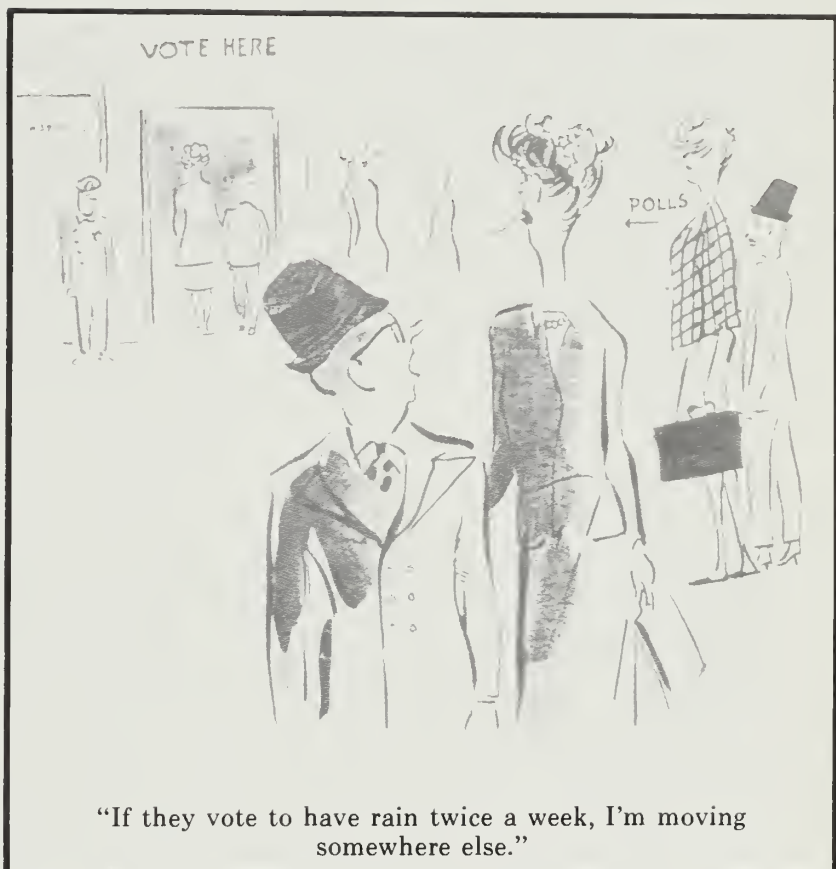

*Martin Luther King, Jr. was quoted as saying, "I hope that world peace will have become secure, not because a balance of terror will have paralyzed mankind but because most of the world's people will have realized that non-violence in the nuclear age was life's last chance."

BEST

Heather-

I thought it would be easy to write to you. I could make it easy and tell you how much you've meant to me all these years, but you already know that you're my world to me. We've grown from two little girls to the best of friends who can look back and be proud that we've made it through good and bad together. Everybody's always told us that they know we'll never be separated. They're right, because we've shared so much and dreamed so much that no matter how far apart we are, we'll have so many memories. I never thought there would come a time when there was something we couldn't get through. It looks like we might have finally met our match: time to say goodbye. Neither one of us knows what the future is going to hold, but if it is goodbye, then I can be confident to know that goodbye for us is different from others. I know we've shared so much and meant so much to each other that there'll never be an end to our friendship. We've spent the best years of our lives together, and none of that will change. You'll always be my best friend, and no matter what, we'll find a way to keep our dreams alive, and we'll find a way to keep the memories going. I love you, kiddo, and remember: best friends till the end.

Love ya,
Best Friends Forever
Stephanie

If someone asked me
what a best friend is,
there are lots of things
I could say.

For example,
a best friend is
the one you can
trust completely,
the one who
listens to you,
laughs with you,
cares for you,
on your good days,
on your bad days.
A best friend is
one of the nicest things
that could happen to you,
because, out of
all the people
in the world,
you've been lucky enough
to find each other.....
I could go on and on about what a best friend is,
but it's really easiest
to simply say,
"It's you!"

Steff-

I'd just like to say thank you for all that you've done for me. You've picked me up when I've been down, you've always had a shoulder there for me to cry on or an ear there for listening. We've been through good and bad, and throughout everything our friendship has survived, and it's always been the most important thing. That's saying a lot.

I hope you realize how very much you mean to me and how special you are. I'll never forget you or all you've done for me. I really don't know what I would've done without you! Thank you for being my very best friend, and Steff--thank you for just being you! I'm going to miss you! I love you!!

Best friends forever and ever!!

The yearbook staff wishes to extend a special thanks to our two very helpful advisors, Mrs. Byron and Mrs. Ralston. Without their support and hard work we, the yearbook staff, would not have survived!

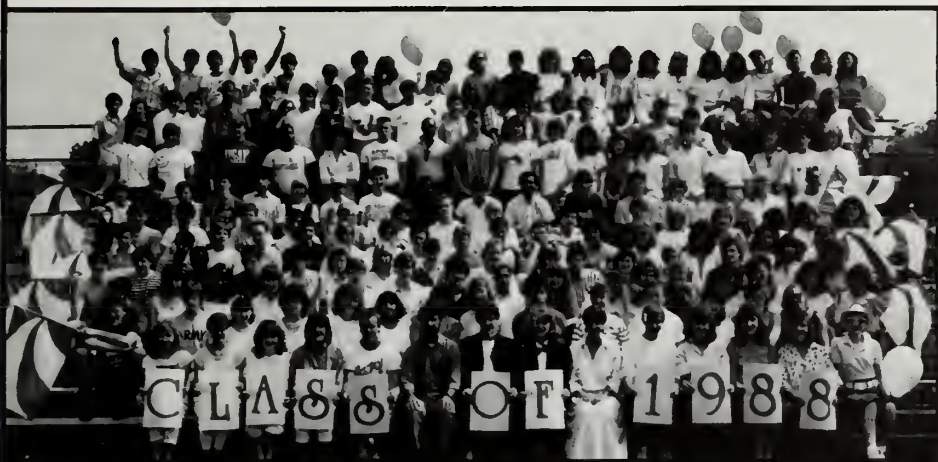

We would also like to thank Mrs. Hovsepian. She was a very important part of the yearbook. She took time out from her busy schedule to help all the "newcomers" adjust to a very timely task.

Thank you!

and Editors

From Kindergarten to Graduation We Finally Made It!

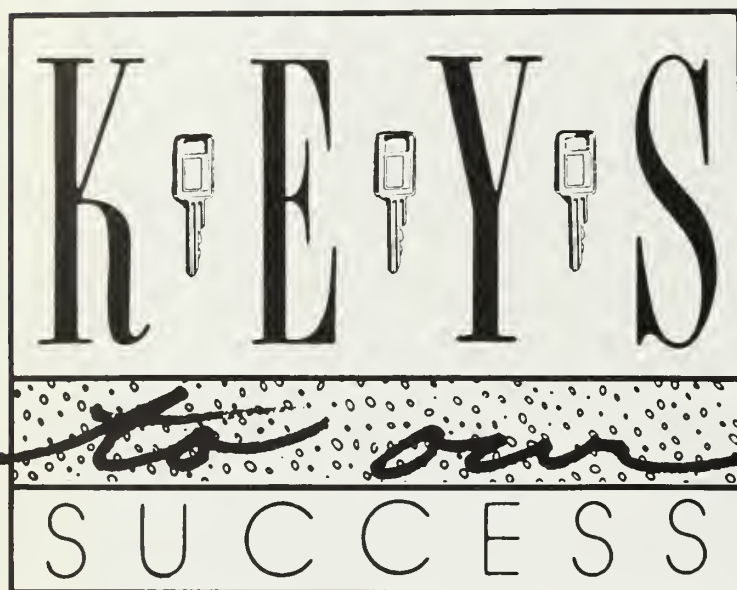

Congratulations to the Class of 1988! We have gone from kindergarten to graduation. Our fundraisers progressed from magazine drives in the Middle School to Bedford Day booths selling homemade tie-dye shirts. In the meantime, we banded together to pull off all kinds of projects from hall decorating to prom decorating. Somehow we survived the rough times with much success--a success that will always remain with the Class of 1988.

Good luck to the classes to follow!

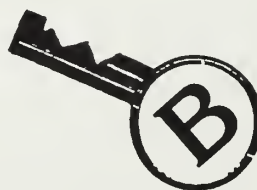

A special thanks to our devoted advisors, Mr. Huff and Ms. Curran, for their help and support during our junior and senior years.

KEYS

to our SUCCESS

In Conclusion

The keys to our...
knowledge,
individualism,
relationships,
failures
accomplishments
responsibilities,
learning...

are the keys to our success that unlock the treasures of our heart, and open the doors to our future....

-R.J. Winslow

Erika McGilvray shows the super school spirit that all Bedford High students are proud of.

The best of friends: Pam Smith, Kristi Travers, Robyn Hannon, and Carol Pisani.

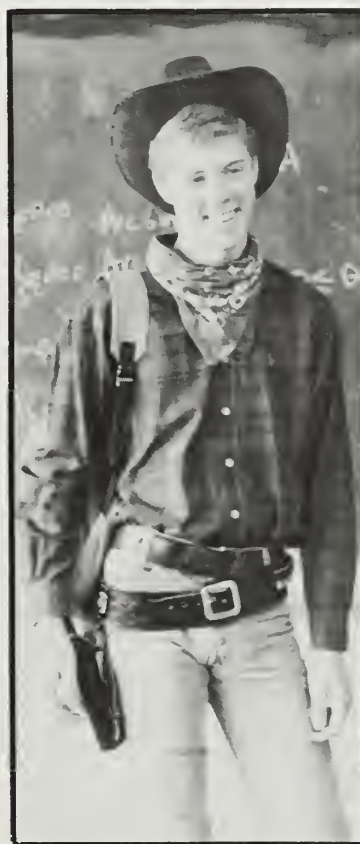

Many "first's" were performed by the football team this year. The team was the first to do a cheer for the cheerleaders during a pep rally (as shown); the first in 10 years to beat Concord in the Thanksgiving game; and the first to break Lincoln-Sudbury's winning streak.

A group of seniors poses for a picture to make a lasting memory.

The 1987 Prom Queen and King, Emily Carr, and Matt Mazzotta, dance the traditional slow dance to the prom theme "Almost Paradise."

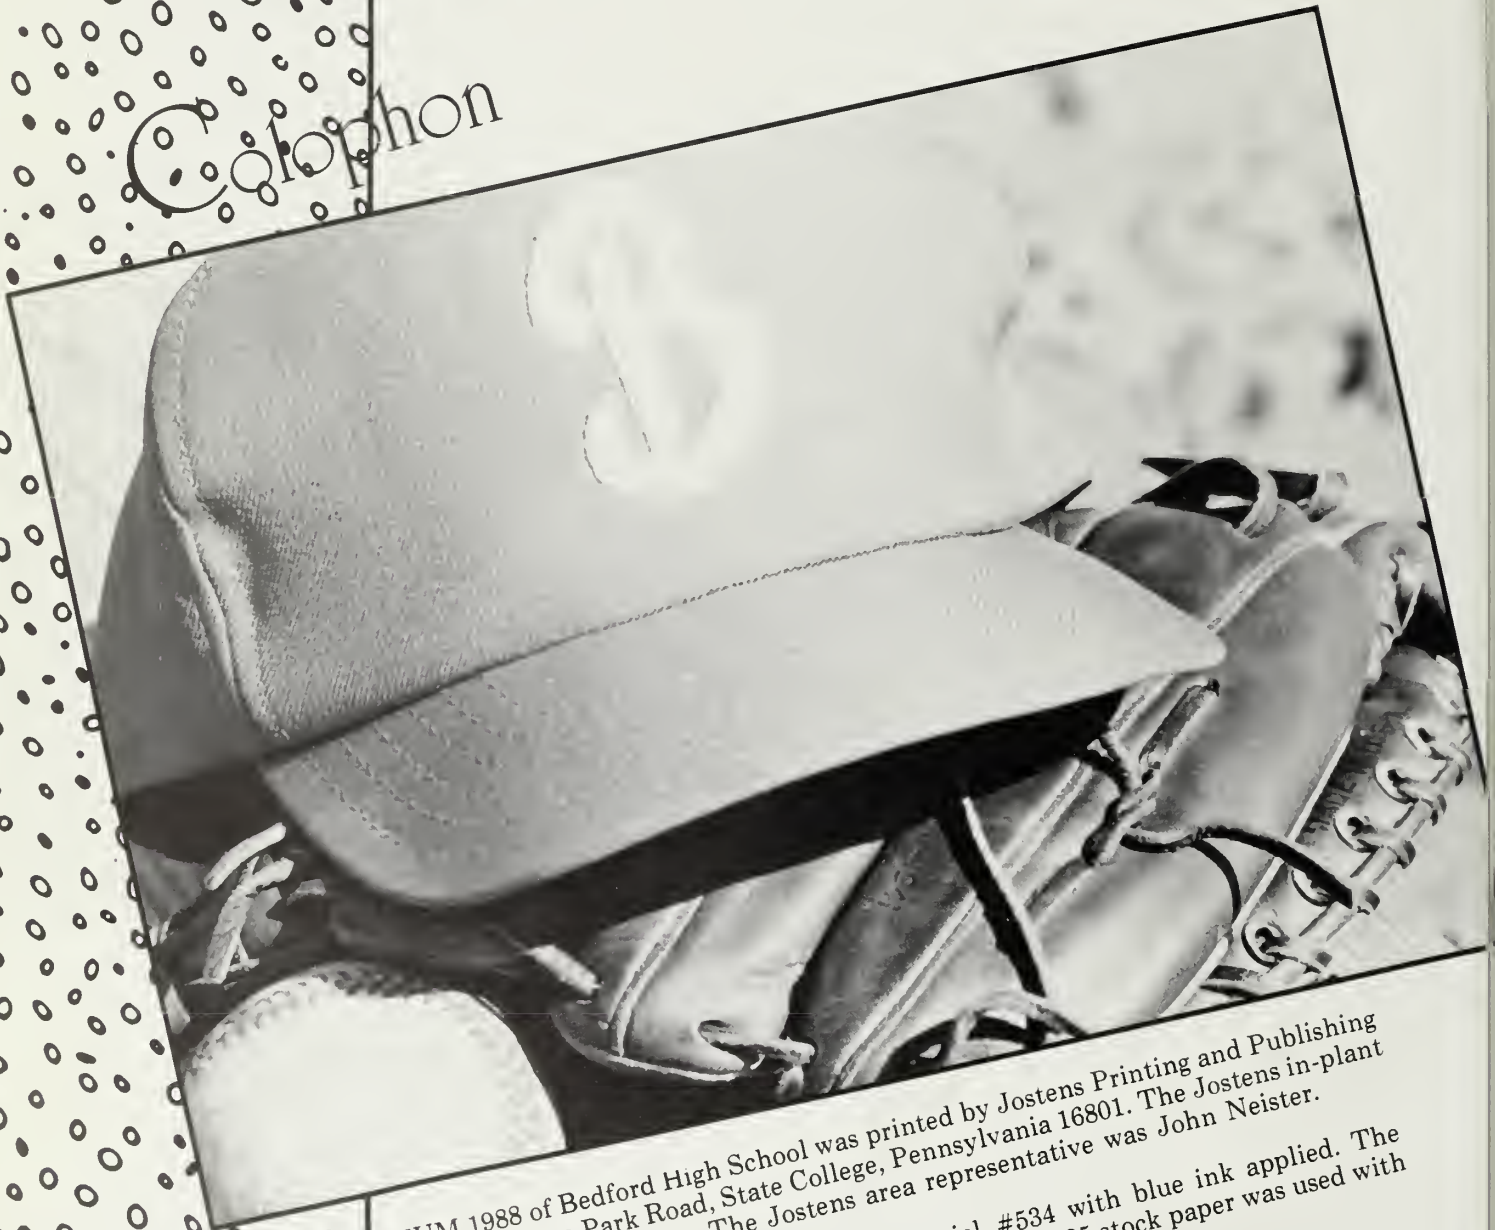

Leslie Fryer and Robyn Randazzo shoot the breeze away strumming the guitar.

Alissa Millman, during Spirit Week, portrays a post-pregnant mother.

Colophon

SIGNUM 1988 of Bedford High School was printed by Jostens Printing and Publishing Division, 401 Science Park Road, State College, Pennsylvania 16801. The Jostens in-plant consultant was Karen Stariha. The Jostens area representative was John Neister.

The cover was Styleline embossed white material #534 with blue ink applied. The endsheets were Medium Blue #313 material. 80 lb Matte #195 stock paper was used with black ink. Of the 208 pages, 16 were printed in the four color process.

Photographs were taken by Burlington Studio, 99R Cambridge Street, Burlington, Ma. 01803 and by Signum staff photographers.

All headlines were set in University Type Style. Primary headlines were 30 point and secondary headlines were 18 point.

The body copy was set in 10 point Century Schoolbook. Captions were set in 8 point. The publication date for the 500 yearbooks was May 1988.
